Using the habits of the mind as part of a reflection at the end of a project.

2:19pm, Mon, Jun 12, 2017 by Will

I can see the habits being incorporated as they come up with the curriculum, but make time to debrief strategies.

2:19pm, Mon, Jun 12, 2017 by Joy

Choose one or more habit to discuss/share about whenever having class discussions.

In my class I will introduce striving for accuracy and precision in order for students to refine their learning for competency

2:19pm, Mon, Jun 12, 2017 by marissa

I plan to make a bulletin board of the habits to reference.

2:19pm, Mon, Jun 12, 2017 by Joy

Use I can statements for students to self-evaluate where their strengths are as a learner.

Finding humor though failures in order to grow

2:19pm, Mon, Jun 12, 2017 by Kym

I love the idea of picking a habit, explicitly teaching the habit, and then helping students to make "the habit" their own.

2:19pm, Mon, Jun 12, 2017 by Jenn

Pick a few HOM that work for individual projects and focus on those.

2:20pm, Mon, Jun 12, 2017 by mary

Have students identify the strengths and struggles of their own HOM to improve upon.

2:20pm, Mon, Jun 12, 2017 by Jackie

In my class, I will make sure the students can reflect on the habits of mind that they included in an assignment.

2:20pm, Mon, Jun 12, 2017 by Teacher

Allow students to ask clarifying questions during morning meeting time (responsive Classroom).

2:20pm, Mon, Jun 12, 2017 by Cocqui

In my class, I will utilize students as coaches/teammates to each other to reflect on the habits of mind

Posting "I can" statements for various HOM's to refer back to as students are working.

2:21pm, Mon, Jun 12, 2017 by Sara

these align pretty well with the 8 mathematical CCSS practices, which I probably need to reference/teach more

2:21pm, Mon, Jun 12, 2017 by K

The HOM fall under the umbrella of the Approaches to Learning in the IB programme.

2. Focusing on 'impulsivity" at the beginning when discussing norms. It is not necessarily bad, but can be managed.

2:21pm, Mon, Jun 12, 2017 by Shredder

The HOM correlate with the mathematical practices.
